SUMMARY OF INVESTIGATION:

The complainant, Probationary Police Officer Katherine Doig, related in a formal written statement to the Office of Professional Standards (on 11 September 1996) that on 01 September 1996, at 1000 hours, she awakened [REDACTED], Police Officer Jeffrey Doig, to go on a [REDACTED] bicycle ride. Shortly thereafter, they engaged in a verbal argument. When the argument began, [REDACTED] [REDACTED] ([REDACTED] YOA) [REDACTED] YOA), went outside. [REDACTED] [REDACTED] YOA), was not home. The argument continued to the kitchen. During the course of the argument, Officer Jeffrey Doig knocked a coffee pot full of hot coffee with his arm off the counter, and it fell to the floor and broke. Officer Katherine Doig, who was standing approximately fifteen feet away when the coffee pot was knocked to the floor, jumped out of the way because the coffee splashed when it hit the floor. It was Officer Katherine Doig's opinion that [REDACTED] accidentally knocked the coffee pot. Officer Katherine Doig then placed a telephone call [REDACTED] [REDACTED] and proceeded to talk about [REDACTED]. At that time, Officer Jeffrey Doig unplugged the telephone. Officer Katherine Doig then plugged the telephone back in and called the police. Officer Katherine Doig stated to Investigator Stoutenborough, "We were arguing back and forth. I was sort of concerned that the argument not get heated, so I called the police just to keep it settled down." Officer Jeffrey Doig did not obstruct her in any way when she called the police. When the sergeant (now known as Sergeant Patrick Kellam) arrived, he interviewed Officer Katherine Doig. [REDACTED] then came [REDACTED]. [REDACTED] did not witness the incident. Officer Katherine Doig could not recall if [REDACTED] used vulgar and/or profane language; however, she stated, "I think he did use a few words, but I don't recall the exact words."

Sergeant Patrick Kellam related in his Initiation Report that Probationary Police Officer Katherine Doig related to him that she woke [REDACTED] Officer

Jeffrey Doig, to go on a planned [REDACTED] bicycle ride with [REDACTED]. At that time, [REDACTED] became angry and repeatedly insulted her in vulgar and profane language [REDACTED]. Officer Katherine Doig further alleged that [REDACTED] threw a coffee pot to the ground causing it to break. When Officer Katherine Doig attempted to telephone [REDACTED], Officer Jeffrey Doig took the telephone away and refused to allow her to use the telephone. Sergeant Kellam recommended to both parties that they contact the Department's [REDACTED]. Sergeant Kellam then initiated this complaint.

[REDACTED] (Probationary Police Officer Katherine Doig's [REDACTED]) refused to be interviewed for this investigation stating [REDACTED] did not want to interfere in their lives.

The accused, Officer Jeffrey Doig, related in a formal written statement to the Office of Professional Standards (on 17 September 1996) that he engaged in an argument with [REDACTED] Probationary Police Officer Katherine Doig, because she woke him to go on a planned [REDACTED] bicycle ride when he was tired from working the Democratic Convention. He walked into the kitchen and made a pot of coffee, then took a shower. When he got out of the shower, he heard [REDACTED] talking about him on the telephone to [REDACTED]. Officer Jeffrey Doig told [REDACTED] to use another telephone if she was going to talk about him, and he unplugged the telephone. Officer Jeffrey Doig and Officer Katherine Doig continued to argue, and he accidentally knocked the coffee pot off the mini-counter when he was "talking with [his] hands." Officer Jeffrey Doig then went outside. While he was outside, a police officer arrived. Officer Jeffrey Doig did not know that [REDACTED] had called the police. The officer informed Officer Jeffrey Doig that a sergeant was on his way. When the sergeant (now known as Sergeant Patrick Kellam) arrived, he went into the house to speak with Officer Katherine Doig. Officer Jeffrey Doig remained outside and talked to the officer. When Sergeant Kellam came out of the residence, he advised Officer Jeffrey Doig to go somewhere for a couple hours. Officer Jeffrey Doig went to visit [REDACTED], then he returned to [REDACTED] a couple hours later to get ready for work. Officer Jeffrey Doig stated that he did not discuss the incident with his [REDACTED]. According to Officer Jeffrey Doig, [REDACTED] at the time of the incident, went outside shortly after the argument began. There were no witnesses to the altercation. While the police were on the scene, [REDACTED] brought [REDACTED] [REDACTED]. Officer Jeffrey Doig stated that he did not recall using profane or vulgar language during the argument. He denied that he intentionally knocked the coffee pot off the counter. He stated that he unplugged the telephone when [REDACTED] was speaking [REDACTED], but he did not physically take the telephone from her or prohibit her from [REDACTED] on another telephone.

CONCLUSION:

Due to conflicting accounts and lack of any other evidence, it is recommended that the allegations against Officer Jeffrey Doig be given the finding of NOT SUSTAINED since there is insufficient evidence to prove or disprove the allegations.
